

The building of the Old Chemistry Laboratory in Solonos Street, at its initial state. It was built in the late 1870s, designed by Ernst Ziller. The second floor was added much later.

Photographic Archive, Hellenic Literary and Historical Archive—Cultural Foundation of National Bank of Greece (MIET/ELIA)

The house of Stamatis Kleantes and Eduard Schaubert in Plaka, the first premises of the newly established University of Athens (1837-1842)

Athens University History Museum

The University's Cultural Centre – Lounge (since 1985: "Kostis Palamas Building"). It was built in 1857 and, initially, it operated as a private Lyceum. In 1870, the building was purchased by the University of Athens in order to house Medical and Natural Science laboratories, lecture halls and University museums. In 1981, the building was renovated and, since then, it is being used as a Cultural Centre – Lounge, a Library and place for scientists' meetings.

Athens University History Museum

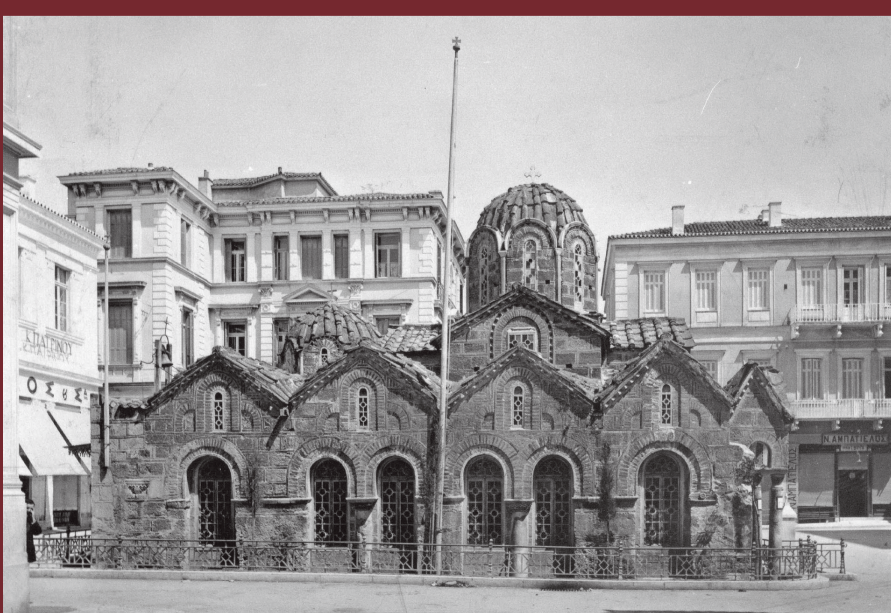

The Aretaieio University Hospital in the Interwar period. The hospital was founded in 1894 and started operating as a Surgery Clinic in 1898 at the bequest of benefactor Theodoros Aretaios, Professor at the School of Medicine.

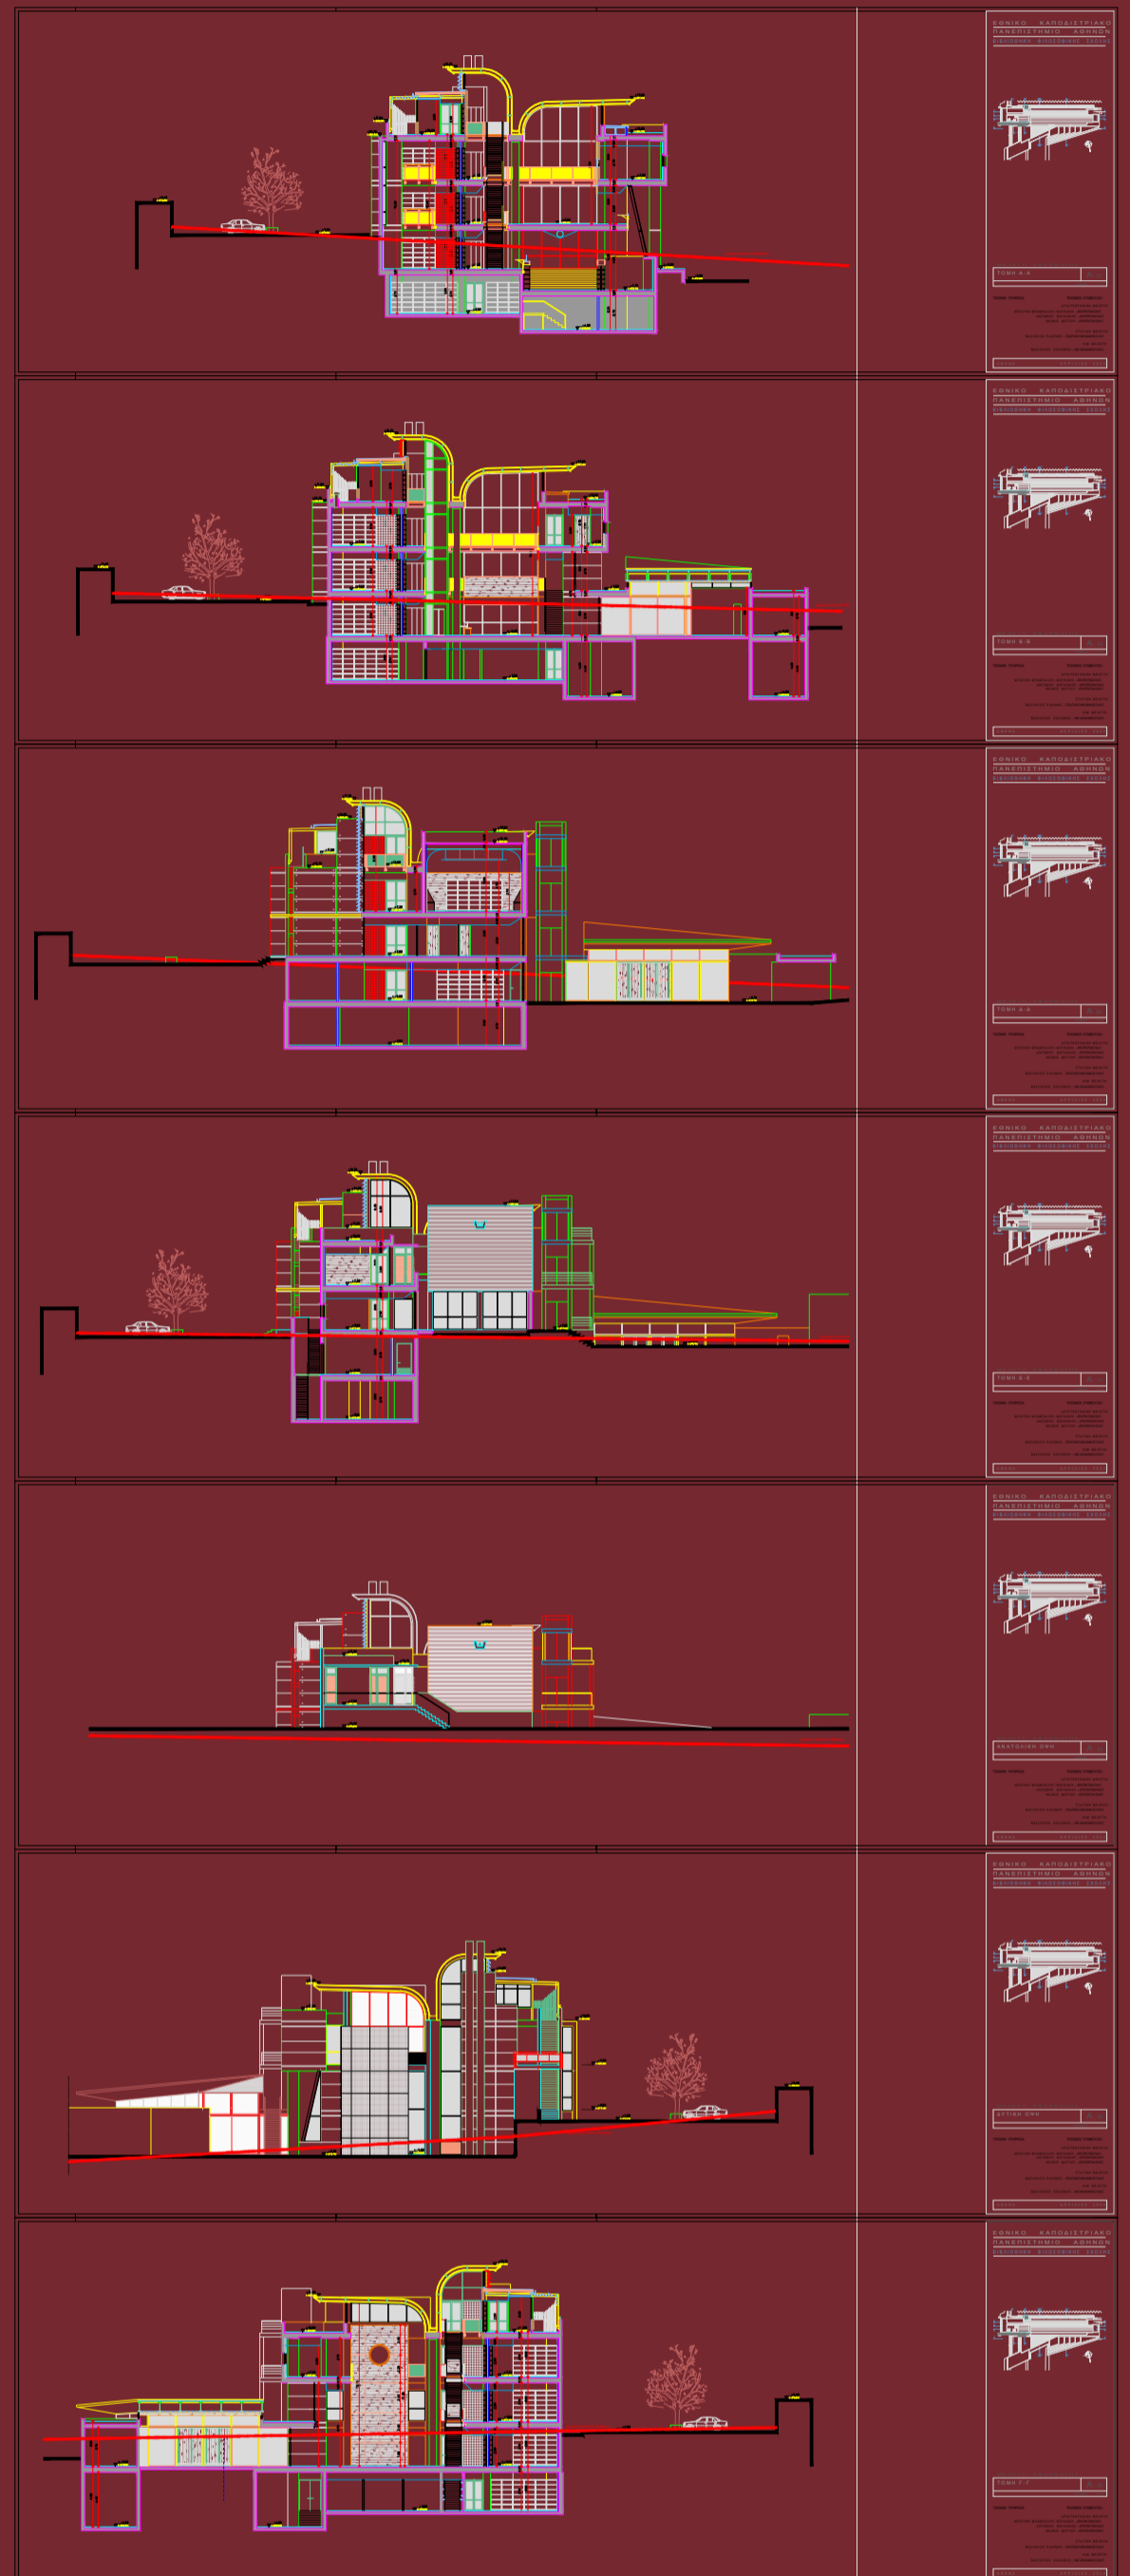

The University of Athens and its branches (Athens 1923)

View of the School of Medicine, University of Athens
Historical Archive of the University of Athens

The University Church of Panagia Kapnikarea
Photographic Archive of the National Historical Museum

Architectural drawings of the new library of the School of Philosophy
Technical Services Department of the University of Athens